■ YOU can't diss 50 Cent's music or look at his trainers the wrong way without getting into bother. But you can chuck eggs at him for half a million quid. Fiddy, 30, explained: "They gave me £550,000 to play at the Reading Festival, and I'd play Reading again. "And guess what? I'll stand still. If you're lucky, you can hit me with some sh*t. For half a million, you bet I'd let 60,000 people throw eggs at me." We're already saving up, Mr Cent... ■ PORTUGUESEER Nadia Almada is in luck, because hunky Dermot O'Leary wants to have sex with her. The Big Brother's Little Brother host, 32, would love to find out what the troubled transsexual, 28, is like in the bedroom. But out of all of the contestants, he says BB5's breast-baring babe Shell Jubin, 23, would be his dream wife. He said: "I'd sleep with Nadia just for the hell of it. But I'd marry Shell." In that order? What an odd wedding day.

HUSH HUSH

WHICH superstar uses a penis pump to enlarge his manhood? And the mad method which he boasts about his But his chat-up line, "I'm too nice to be tied down but being blindfolded is fine", is a step too far. No wonder he books into hotels using the code name Edam.

QUICKIES...

■ DAVID Walliams wishes he was the only gay in the village. The Little Britain funny-man, 34, has been plagued by rumours about his sexuality despite dating a string of beauties including Abi Titmuss, 29, Patsy Kensit, 37, and Lisa Snowden, 31. But David, who recently snogged Will Young, 25, on Parky, wishes the stories were true because it's difficult being straight. He said: "Life would be a lot simpler if I was gay, but we can't choose." Don't stop remember you're a lay-dee, Dave... ■ KATE Lawler, 25, won't be speaking to TV host Jeff Brazier when she next sees him. Jade Goody's ex and father of her two sons let rip on Galaxy 102 to presenter Wes Butters. Asked which female celeb he thought was "mingling", Jeff, 24, replied: "I don't think Kate Lawler is all that attractive and her personality isn't that big." Miaoow...

THE PARTY'S OVER

ANNA Friel has confessed she ended her friendships with Kate Moss and Sadie Frost because she didn't want their wild reputations to tarnish her image. The 29-year-old's time in the Big Apple made her grow up and when she returned she no longer wanted to rub shoulders with Cocaine Kate, 31, and saucy Sadie, 40. Anna, left, said: "The tabloids had stories about drink, drugs and partying. I didn't want to be guilty by association. I love my job, I don't want to ruin it by having a reputation. I haven't seen my old friends for years." That's probably because one or two of them are in rehab...

Ma'am with no charm

■ DON'T blonde bimbos Paris Hilton and Orlaith McAllister look a right royal mess?

Paris, 24, proved money can't buy you taste by wearing a tank top emblazoned with the slogan "Royal Highness" when she shopped in Los Angeles. The socialite made the fashion statement just weeks after horrifying the States with her infamous comment: "I'm the closest thing to American royalty."

And, if Paris is a US princess, Big Brother loser Orlaith must be Blighty's Queen of Tarts. The busty blonde, 26, sported a tiara and an almost non-existent dress for Maxim Online's star-studded London bash. One onlooker revealed: "She said she was wearing the crown because she's the princess of reality TV." "She added that she loves the royal family and is desperate to meet the Queen." When she could be chucked into the Tower of London...

Winners take all

SHOWBIZ pals Catherine Zeta Jones and Goldie Hawn put the glamour into New York's Glamour magazine Women of the Year Awards. The girl from Wales, 36, and lovable blonde Goldie, 59, dazzled in black and white at the bash where they were honoured for making their mark on the world. But Catherine feared they looked like the Abba babes. She said: "Goldie and I are thrilled with the honour but we're worried people will be disappointed that we're not Agnetha and Frida." Still, the pair were certainly Dancing Queens at the after-event party.

The former Wimbledon champ, 24, took the plunge in a skintight mini-dress at the screening of Get Rich Or Die Tryin' in Hollywood.

She's been slimming after piling on the pounds following an injury – and looks back on top form.

Rapper 50 Cent, 30, real name Curtis Jackson, stars in the film based on his life story. He was at the bash with sexy co-star Joy Bryant, 29, above, and Snoop Dogg, 34.

Deportation plane stranded on runway

ASYLUM BUNGLE

FIASCO: Minister McNulty

A FLIGHT taking failed asylum seekers from Britain to Angola was halted on the runway because of a Whitehall blunder.

The plane was about to take off when Home Office officials realised they had failed to get permission for it to land.

And when they made a last-minute plea to Angolan authorities, the answer was "No".

The fiasco cost the taxpayer at least £250,000 and will be a massive embarrassment to Immigration Minister

■ by PAUL MALLEY

Tony McNulty, who is struggling to improve the Government's abysmal record in deporting asylum seekers. The plane had been hired to fly the 49 Africans – including families with children – from Stansted airport in Essex to the Angolan capital Luanda.

Guards

Security guards were brought in to stop them fleeing before take-off.

The Immigration Service had already spent thousands of pounds catching them, holding them in secure centres and transporting them to Stansted. One source said: "This was an almighty and very expensive blunder."

"The Angolans weren't satisfied about the identity or even the nationality of some of the people on board. Basically they didn't believe they were all Angolan."

The detainees are now being held at immigration centres while officials try to reschedule their deportation. The incident means Tony Blair is unlikely to be able to keep his pledge that by next month there will be more removals of migrants than arrivals.

THE new Doctor Who is a real scream – as in funny, not scary. Dishy David Tennant couldn't stop clowning as he filmed on location in London. And he had co-star Billie Piper in hoots of laughter, larking about between takes of the hit BBC sci-fi series.

Gorgeous Billie, 23, grinned away at the antics of David, 34, who takes over the role on Christmas Day – just what the Doctor ordered.

BRAVE KYLIE COULD SAVE THOUSANDS

Big cancer test boost

■ by NADINE LINGE

BRAVE Kylie Minogue's battle against breast cancer has inspired soaring numbers of women to have check-ups for the disease.

And experts say the "Kylie Effect" could save the lives of many thousands.

Health bosses in Britain say screenings have jumped by a quarter since the singer was diagnosed. More women are checking themselves and seeking early treatment after the sexy Aussie star, 37, made the disease headline news.

Emma Taggart, of breast cancer charity Breakthrough, said: "Out of something terrible for Kylie has come something positive. What is really encouraging is that all age groups - including women over 50, who are at greatest risk - are becoming more breast aware."

Lumps

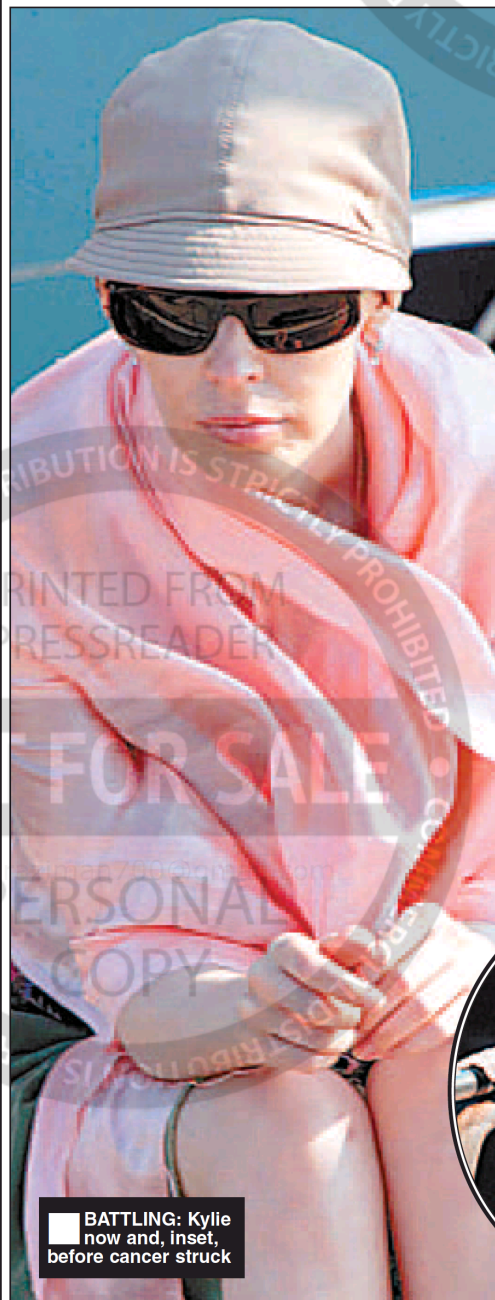

Staff at one hospital, Doncaster Royal Infirmary, have seen a massive increase in women asking for help. Back in May when Kylie was diagnosed there were 360 screenings. Just a month later the number had surged to 454.

Dr Emyr Wyn Jones, of the local health trust, said: "Women have clearly taken to heart Kylie's situation and have started examining themselves. Most lumps are non-cancerous but it is always worth getting them checked."

Breast cancer is the most common cancer among women in the UK, with one in nine developing the disease.

Kylie had surgery to remove a lump and has endured gruelling chemotherapy sessions at a top treatment centre in Paris. Her boyfriend, French actor Olivier Martinez, 39, has been constantly at her side to support her.

JOE MOTT'S AWARD WINNING HOT

Robbie's the man HE SCOOPS TOP MTV MALE PRIZE

ROBBIE Williams re-affirmed his status as a pop icon by landing the Best Male gong at the MTV Music Europe Awards last night.

But the 31-year-old star was hit by tattoo trouble at the star-studded bash.

The heavily inked singer's brand new etching turned septic, leaving him with a nasty wound.

Rob showed off his tattoo to pals as he partied before the glitzy show at the Four Seasons Ritz Hotel in Lisbon.

He told Foo Fighters man Nate Mendel, 36: "I have just had this new one done on my wrist and it has gone a bit funny."

Talent

"It has got messy and I am using Savlon on it to try and heal it."

"I can't get that in the States so I am buying a load of it in England."

Robbie dressed down for the occasion - in his fave pair of old carpet slippers.

He said: "I'm wearing my slippers. They're really old and battered but they're so comfortable."

It wasn't just Robbie, 31, who was honoured.

It was a great year for British talent in general. Chris Martin, 28, and Coldplay bagged two gongs and weighed in with a fired up perfor-

Meanwhile, 37-year-old Damon Albarn's Gorillaz followed up their magnificent success in Manchester this week by winning the Best Group. De La Soul gave a breathtaking performance of Gorillaz tune Feel Good Inc - complete with 3D cartoons.

There was also glory for American rockers Green Day who got two nods for Best Album and Best Rock.

But the overall spectacle of the night was provided by Madonna, 47. Opening the show in Lisbon's Atlantic Pavilion she emerged from a huge disco ball to perform new single Hung Up.

She also hired the De La Guardia acrobatic dance troop to make her set the most breathtaking of the evening.

She sent the crowd crazy - but not host Sacha Baron Cohen.

The Ali G funster, who was performing as his character Borat, accused the queen of pop of being a "she-male".

He told the packed pavilion: "It was very courageous of MTV to start the show with a genuine transvestite."

Booty

"It was only his hands and his testes satchel that gave it away."

Hot Shakira provided another high point of the evening.

Performing her new tune Don't Bother, the Colombian lovely, 28, appeared with a full-on live band.

And she wowed the blokes in the audience with her own take on Beyoncé's booty shake.

Gorgeous award presenters Sugababes had an extra member in tow. Slinky Mutya Buena, 20, arrived laden down with nappies and other paraphernalia for her little baby Ty.

And the trio still managed to push all the right buttons.

MTV news host Tim Kash, 23, had the most luxurious ride of the night.

He was loaned a Rolls Royce for the show - complete with a mini-bar and video games. Now wonder he had a smile on his face.

MTV bigwigs feared a Coldplay fall-out after the band's dress rehearsal. I'm told: "Chris Martin and Johnny Buckland turned up without the others, who arrived just a few minutes later in a different car. 'We think they had had a row.' Or maybe they're just rich enough now not to all cram into the one motor..."

PUSSYCAT Dolls wanted to recreate Madonna's infamous MTV awards two-way snog with Britney Spears, 23, and Christina Aguilera, 24. Before the show the Don't Cha babes confessed: "We want to run on stage at the end of her performance and kiss her." "How about it Madge? How about the Pussycat Dolls kissing you tonight? Let's get that controversy going again."

MADONNA may have stolen the show but not everyone was happy with Her Madgeness. One of her backing dancers was overheard saying: "Madonna is a bitch, she really needs a good slap." The Hung Up singer, 47, hired out 40 hotel rooms for her one day stay in Lisbon - booking suites so she and her entourage could relax in luxury before the big show.

BC IS NOT PC

Barmy bosses write Christ out of history

MUSEUM bosses were accused of going PC barmy for replacing historically-accurate initials "BC" with "BP" to avoid reference to Christ.

They feared the term "Before Christ" could be irrelevant to people of other faiths and used "Before Present" instead.

But Church of England spokesman Steve Jenkins said: "It's incredibly silly. I have never heard of 'BP' before and neither, I'm sure, have the rest of the public.

"I always thought BP was where you go to fill up with petrol.

"I just can't understand the point of introducing other initials - and I'm sure no-one else can either."

The controversy was sparked by the Cheddar Man And The Cannibal exhibition at the Cheddar Caves Museum in Somerset.

It charts the development of humans from prehistory to the present day. But all the prehistoric dates are given as "BP" instead of the commonly-used "BC".

Museum curator Bob Smart said using "BP" was a more accurate way of measuring dates.

Merit

He said: "It is politically-correct but different religions have different dating systems, such as Muslims using before and

2 Million BP

Our early hominid ancestors had the ingenuity to use suitable "found" objects - a hand-sized after Mohammed. 'BP' at least has the merit of applying to the whole world."

OVER THE TOP: BP replaces BC

And exhibition director Hugh Cornwall said many people don't understand what "BC" means anyway.

He added: "Many people think that 4,000BC was 4,000 years ago, when it's actually 6,000 years ago."

"The dates are all very vague. Prehistory is an inexact science."

But museum visitor Rosemary Yule, 45, an accountant of Witherley, Leics, said: "It's political correctness gone mad."

"The whole point of 'BC' is that it's a specific point in time that never moves and everyone knows what it means."

"But BP has no meaning and if it means 'the present day' then it's always moving. It really is a completely nutty idea."

CHARITY SMASH: Freddie

Freddie bids big

■ by MARK JEFFERIES
FREDDIE Flintoff's cricket bats and Kat Slater's wedding dress are being auctioned for Children in Need.

The treasures from EastEnders' prop cupboard and the Ashes series are some of the top items going under the hammer online.

The list also includes The Vicar of Dibley's cassock, tennis lessons with Greg Rusedski, 32, and a first edition Harry Potter book signed by author JK Rowling, 40.

Boost

The goodies, which are expected to raise hundreds of thousands of pounds, are part of the Great Big Bid which is aiming to boost the BBC's famous charity appeal.

Viewers and stars are being asked to donate items to eBay and give their profits to charity.

Children in Need chief executive Sally Deigham said: "This is a brilliant way for people to raise money."

■ by STEPHEN RIGLEY
MURDERED Robert McCartney's campaigning sisters delivered a damning snub to Margaret Thatcher yesterday.

The five Belfast heroines refused to share the lime-light with the former PM at a major awards event.

They declined to accept the Woman of the Year gong for outstanding achievement for their work in bringing Robert's killers to justice.

Music

In a statement, they said: "Our campaign is one of justice and, as an Irish republican family, we feel that we cannot share the same platform as a former prime minister who inflicted injuries on our country." Baroness Thatcher, 80, did turn up at London's Guildhall to accept a lifetime achievement award.

Eleanor Angel, chairman of the Woman of the Year organisation, said: "Her determination and iron will broke down many barriers around the world."

Tina Turner, 65, got the 2005 individual award for her contribution to music.

BRITAIN was battered by more freak weather yesterday.

And forecasters warned there's worse still to come – just a week after beaches were packed with sunbathers.

Last night the north of the country was told to brace itself as gales, torrential rain and floods brought chaos to the south.

There was widespread damage as burst rivers swamped many parts and 70mph gusts uprooted trees.

Rescued

In Uplyme, Devon, a woman was rescued by firecrews when she drove into floods.

In Plymouth, pensioner Phil Skinner and his wife were forced to flee after flood-water poured into their home up to their knees.

Mr Skinner, 75, said: "We are having to live in our conservatory."

The £4.2 million flood defence system in Ottery St Mary, east Devon, was overwhelmed and sandbags had to be handed out by the Environment Agency.

Plymouth Argyle's home game against Leicester on Tuesday was abandoned because of a waterlogged pitch.

Elsewhere a cargo ship with eight crew had to be rescued after its engine failed off the coast of Cornwall and it drifted towards rocks. A

On the West Sussex coast at Littlehampton the weather has left the shore littered with toy pink hippos, red turkeys and Christmas decorations after four containers that fell overboard from a ship a few days ago were finally washed up.

Forecasters say there will be a letup tomorrow but Sunday will see strong winds and more downpours. Experts warn that Britain is on the brink of a climate nightmare.

Last month much of the country was sweltering in record-breaking 70F temperatures.

But the forecasters have warned that this winter could be the coldest since the devastating snows back in 1963.

PHONE RAGE:
Reds fan Goldie was incensed by scorer Rooney

Picture: MERCURY PRESS

WAYNE PHONE YOB 3-YEAR FOOTIE BAN

A YOB who hurled his mobile phone at England ace Wayne Rooney was banned from football grounds for three years yesterday.

Liverpool fan Roy Goldie, 35, chucked his Nokia at the star after he scored in Manchester United's 1-0 win at Anfield.

It was a hostile first return to Merseyside for 20-year-old Rooney following his £27million transfer from Everton to Old Trafford and he was jeered every time that he touched the ball.

by JOHN MAHONEY

The mobile was tossed towards him as he was celebrating his winning strike in front of Liverpool supporters in the Kop.

Safety

District Judge Ian Lomax told father-of-one Goldie: "You might as well have left your name and address on the pitch." With a smile he added: "I am prepared to accept there are frustrations in following a football team.

"I know the meaning of frustration as I follow Blackburn Rovers.

"But there are standards of behaviour needed at football games. They are needed for the safety of the public, players and officials."

Season ticket holder Goldie, of Dovecot, Liverpool, was also fined £800.

He had denied throwing the phone on January 15, but was found guilty by Liverpool magistrates.

Hair we go Gwen

GORGEOUS Gwen Stefani had a grin almost as big as her amazing quiff as she waved to her adoring fans.

The sexy singer, 36, was in New York to help launch a new brand of L.A.M.B. trainers at trendy store Barneys.

The Mouth from Down Under

Bang out of order!

CONGRATS to Kevin Day and the producers of Broken News on BBC 2. It's brilliant and it's going to be big.

If you didn't see the first episode the other night make sure you watch it next week.

It's a send-up of a CNN or Sky News-type, 24-hour news channel. A bit like Steve Coogan's

The Day Today, it's very funny and Kevin Day, played by Colin Stinton, left, is great.

I've never even heard of most of the presenters but the American guy is so realistic I thought I was watching CNN.

The Beeb should recommitment it straight away before CNN actually hires them for real.

I WAS walking out of GMTV the other morning after being a guest on Lorraine Live with the lovely Ms Kelly. I took the lift down to the ground floor and as the door opened there was rockin' Rod Stewart and his very pregnant lady Penny Lancaster - who'd been a guest recently on my brekkie radio show. Penny looked amazing. It's true what they say about pregnant ladies...she was glowing with health and vitality.

THANK God Hallowe'en is over for another year. I had kids ringing my doorbell non-stop demanding sweets the other night. I think it's a complete rip-off.

I blame the damn Yanks and their pumpkin-minded children who have poisoned the minds of ours.

Whoever heard of going door-to-door demanding candy from strangers before the Americans turned it into an industry? Now all we have to worry about is getting the kids and the pets through bonfire night. Every year it's the same thing. "Please be careful with your fireworks and keep your pets inside".

But every year all I hear in my street are military-style explosions, rockets screaming past the windows and the sound of yelling kids and puppies yelping in horror. Is this really fun?

Don't get me wrong I love fireworks and, in fact, I was a bit of a fireworks addict when I was 12 or 13. I even got in trouble with the police for letting off bangers in my school playground. But I think we should just enjoy them for what they are - an excuse to let off a bit of steam and make some bloody noise.

Idiots

The trouble with fireworks is a lot of idiots get hold of them and end up blowing stuff up - sometimes themselves.

It's impossible to try to sell them to trustworthy adults or responsible kids because the wrong people will always find a way of getting the ammo.

I feel sorry for the kids who get burned and the poor pets that get killed or maimed by morons.

The Coleman family will be going to an organised fireworks display again this year. They do all the cleaning up and I can have a few big drinks.

Guy Fawkes rules OK!

STEVE IS GIVING IT LARGE

I HAD a great natter with Ricky Gervais's writing and creative partner Stephen Merchant.

What a top bloke but SO TALL. He actually ducked his head coming into the studio.

He said that's why he is always sitting down in Extras, where he plays Ricky's hopeless agent. Ricky is short and Stephen is like a lamppost so that's the only way they can fit onto the screen together.

He said the wish list for showbiz cameos on series two of extras reads like a Who's Who of Hollywood. My tips are Mel Gibson, David Letterman and Russell Crowe. I know these stars are huge fans.

I'm off to Manchester to sing live on Celeb Stars in Their Eyes. This might be a big mistake.

Fashion victim

I MADE the mistake of calling Trinny "Tranny" when I had her and Susannah on the brekkie show. But I always call her that!

She laughed then tore my fashion choices to pieces and Susannah weighed in with both Burberry barrels aimed at my suit shorts and floral shirt. I was asking for it by not dressing up for the girls. It got worse when I got the name of the book wrong and implied their show was nasty to older ladies.

They then implied that I had a "thing" for the older lass... Sorry Trinny and Suzee but that's where I draw the line. Leave my granny-loving out of this.

Beyoncé's got it taped

■ EAGER fans got set for a big eyeful as Beyoncé Knowles let it all hang out at a New York concert.
■ But the 24-year-old singer took no chances – she was tightly taped into that dress to avoid a Janet Jackson moment.
